STC Conference Terms and Conditions

By registering for the SUNY Technology Conference, exhibitors accept and agree to abide by these terms and conditions as well as all other Conference information and instructions provided by the STC Planning Committee.

Who Attends?

Conference participants will arrive with specific expectations about what will happen over the three days of the conference. They will explore new technologies, search for best practices from colleagues, share solutions and grow professionally. Presentations by industry experts and SUNY peers, professional development workshops, a keynote address centered on emerging technologies and a 2-day technology exhibition will deliver experiences and opportunities to accomplish these goals.

The Computing Officers Association (COA), the Telecommunications Officers Association (TOA) and the Educational Technology Officers Association (EdTOA), three prominent State University of New York technology organizations convene the SUNY Technology Conference annually. Assisting with the planning are the Counsel of CIO's (CCIO), SUNY Systems Administration, and the Alliance for Strategic Technologies (AST). These organizations are comprised of computing professionals, educators, telecommunication professionals, and media specialists from within SUNY. The institutions represented include SUNY System Administration and sixty-four campuses comprised of four major university centers, nine doctoral granting institutions, thirteen university colleges, eight technology colleges and thirty community colleges. Together they serve over 500,000 students, faculty and staff.

SUNY attendance in the past has exceeded 350, with overall participation in excess of 575. This year will be no exception.

Benefits of being an Exhibitor

The conference will explore a broad range of technologies and issues relating to administrative and academic computing, policy, infrastructure, educational technology, media, telecommunications, leadership and management. Professional development activities augment a strong program of presentations, expert panels and round table discussions.

Participation of many of the university's business partners in this event has in the past, made the conference a valuable component of technology planning for campuses and SUNY wide decision makers. In the hope that STC 2026 will offer the same benefit, we are calling upon our partners to participate this year and to demonstrate how their solutions have evolved to help SUNY to enhance innovation, resources and services.

Technology Exhibition Information, Exhibitor Levels, Terms and Conditions are all attached. You can also find all of this information on the conference web site. To secure your spot at STC 2026 please register online at: stc.suny.edu.

Exhibitors will be invoiced upon receipt of their online registration. Payment must be received within 30 days of the invoice (registration) date. Exhibitor registration and booth assignments for the Technology Exhibition will not be confirmed until payment is received
